HISTORY OF THE GLENWOOD DISTRICT (PART 1 OF A SERIES) – WRITTEN BY DORA LAW,

In the year 1880, the "Cochrane Ranch Company" was organized in Eastern Canada with Senator Cochrane of Quebec as president. The company owned several farms and ranches including the Pure Bred Cattle Farm in Quebec. From this farm came the basic herd for a ranch in South Western Alberta. This ranch, which has long been known as "The Cochrane Ranch", was the first of its kind in Southern Alberta and comprised 66,500 acres situated about 20 miles east of the Rocky Mountains and about 25 miles north of the US/Canadian border.

In the year 1906, the manager of this farm, a man named Dunlap, froze to death on the Macleod Trail. Senator Cochrane passed away in the East and a man named Colonel Mullin was made manager.

There had been a large stone house built near the east end of the Ranch and a house and necessary buildings for the cowboys and ranch hands about ½ mile away. This cowboy's home still stands and has always been known as "The Blue House" because of its color at the time.

About 1906 Latter-day Saints and other families were beginning to settle the surrounding land, taking up homesteads mostly. Some of these family names were Carter, Woodruff, Shipley, Newby, Billingsley, Beaves, Hovis, Whipple, Bester, Cotton and others.

Edward J Wood, who was then president of the Alberta Stake, suggested to the General Authorities of the Church the idea of purchasing the Cochrane Ranch and reselling it to LDS families who wished to make their home in Canada. President Wood made a trip to Quebec to complete the sale with Colonel Mullin of the Cochrane Ranch Company. The price was $399,000 or $6 per acre with $99,000 cash, the balance to be paid at $60,000 per year with no interest.

The Ranch Co. was given 3 years to dispose of their cattle in return for the "no interest" terms of the sale. These 'wild' cattle roamed the open prairie and are still the subject of many fireside tales of our few remaining pioneers. There were no fences, the grass grew stirrup high to the cowmen, very thick, and all this helped to give the whole country the appearance of the Wild and Wooly West.

The church sent Seymour B. Smith, Civil Engineer, with Golden L. Woolf, D. Osborn Wight, Abner Bohne and Oliver Goble, as rod men to survey the land for farms, to determine the prospect of irrigation and to lay out plans for two townsites. The Village of Glenwood was named for Glen, the oldest son of President E.J. Wood.

The land was still known as the 'Cochrane Ranch'. Later it was Cochrane Municipality and is now part of the Cardston M.D.
