Gone but not Forgotten...

BILL WERNER MICHEL, passed away August 20, 2020 at the age of 84 Written by Barb Michel "With a happy/sad heart, I would like to announce the passing of my eternal sweetheart, Bill. He had a very rare and very aggressive form of cancer. In such a short time, it ate away at his body. He was such a trooper and was so brave and would never complain (except for those dang tubes coming out of his back as he had a hard time laying down). Thank you so much to all who have sent love and kindnesses to me. It is all so appreciated. We had a family funeral in our home.

MARLENE DIETRICH CHURCH HAMON, passed away April 29, 2020 at the age of 86 Marlene was born May 9, 1933 in Dietrich Idaho to Jerry Church and Ida Jonetta Matson. She went to school and grew up in Dietrich along with her older sister Betty Lou.

She met and married Arnold Stocking and they had five children, Jerry, Gaydena, Yolanda, Hyrum and Utahna. Utahna died in infancy. The marriage later ended in divorce.

In 1953 Marlene was baptized a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She would serve and remain active in the Church the rest of her life.

While on a vacation in southern Alberta she met her second husband, Joseph LaBoucane. Their marriage was blessed with a son, lan. increase is to help fund the rising costs of maintenance and upkeep of our aging irrigation system. The system was installed nearly 20 years ago, and now we are having to repair frequent breakage and replace some infrastructure. Your patience is appreciated with the billing error from July, but those errors will be fixed on September's bill. Those who have paid in advance for the entire year, to receive the December utilities free, will need to make a small top up payment. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to call the village office at (403) 626.3233.

Also during this time she met Trevor and Mildred Hamon. The families became best friends across the years. When her marriage to Joseph ended in divorce, Marlene and her children moved back to the United States.

On July 2nd, 1986 she married her Eternal Companion, Trevor Clarke Hamon after the passing of his wife, and Marlene's good friend, Mildred.

Together she and Trevor served as a missionary couple in the Cook Islands, in Papua New Guinea and with the Lamanite Branch in Glenwood.

Marlene took great pride in her extended family. She kept a close count of all the kids, grandkids, great grandkids and great, great grandkids, and she enjoyed their visits and the phone calls and the times they shared together.

A Private Graveside was held at the Glenwood Cemetery.

History of the Glenwood Area

(Part 4 in a Series written by Dora Law, probably written in the mid 1980's)

In 1914, one telephone came into the district. It was placed in the Edward Leavitt home and was a direct connection to Cardston. In 1920, telephones were all put through the district with the switchboard in Edwin Leavitt's home. Later it was moved into a part of Vans and Dans Store. In 1965 a separate telephone building was erected and the dial system came into effect.

Sylvan Wood, son of Ben Wood, was the first child born on the Cochrane Ranch and in 1907 Adelaide Beaves Law was the first baby blessed in the Glenwood Ward. Vergie Buck, daughter of Sam and Bertha Buck, was the first death in Feb 1910.

The first world war saw many of the young men go into the services. Of this number, only Stanley Read and Sam Law are still living here in Glenwood.

In 1916, Stewart's bought the first car, a McLaughlin Buick that cost one team of horses and $900. A pulley or block and tackle with three iron stakes went with the car as part of the equipment to pull it out of the mud holes.

On November 14, 1914, a committee officially appointed to organize a Municipal Council met at the home of Edward Leavitt. Up to this time, civic affairs were looked after by the R.C.M.P. who were stationed in a barracks near the river south of Hillspring. They patrolled the territory on horseback to see that there was no trouble, such as hunger or lawlessness.

On January 4, 1915, the elected members of the Rural Municipality of Cochrane No. 10 met in Edward Leavitt's home. These members were John S. Smith, James M. Billingsley, George L. Stringam, Edward Leavitt, Walter H.

Caldwell, William E. French, E.A. Law acted as secretary. At this meeting, James M. Billingsley was elected Reeve, with Walter H. Caldwell Deputy Reeve. It was decided to hire a secretary. In other business at that meeting, it was decided to choose sites for a cemetery for both Hillspring and Glenwood. James M. Billingsley was given the responsibility of picking out the location for Glenwood's Cemetery.

The first bylaws passed made it illegal for anyone to allow pigs to roam at large on the townsite.

Office equipment and books were ordered from Christies Book Store in Brandon, Manitoba. John Petersen of Hillspring was appointed the first secretary at a salary of $300 per year. At the March 8, 1915 meeting, George L. Stringam was elected Reeve as the former Reeve, James Billingsley had passed away. V.I. Stewart filled the vacancy.

Land was valued at $10 per acre and town lots at $30 per acre for assessment purposes. The municipal tax was set at 1.5 mills and 9.5 mills for school tax.

Jordan Law was the first weed inspector. July 5, 1915, $300 was appropriated for road construction. April 26, 1915, the cemetery was definitely located in the site now being used. In 1915, Waldemar C. Lybbert was appointed the first constable at $25 per year. In 1916, a petition was circulated to get a rural telephone and tri-weekly mail service. Edward Newby was the first Health Officer in 1917 at the salary of $25 per year. During those early years, horses, cows and machinery were taken in and sold to collect taxes due on the land.

1918 saw the outbreak of Influenza. There was no hospital or nurses. The nearest doctor was in Cardston, but there were several women in the district who were good, practical nurses and who gave freely their time and talents. There was Elizabeth Newby, Bertha Buck, Sara Stringam, Sara Webster, Annie Greene and others who will long be remembered as ministering angels by friends and neighbours. The Flu Bug attacked almost everyone and many were unable to survive.

Then there was the winter of 1919-1920 that will always be known as the "Hard Winter". The summers of 1918-1919 had been very dry and scarcely any crops were raised. The winter of 1919 set in very early and very severe. There was almost no food and many farmers took their horses and cattle and drove them north into the Vulcan and Blackie districts where feed was more plentiful. Those farmers who kept their livestock in the district were forced to haul hay, straw and grain for feed from Cardston to keep them alive. Feed was shipped in there and sold at exorbitant prices. It was rationed and often a man would have to make a trip every day to keep a few horses and a milk cow alive. Then to make matters worse, the price of livestock declined by the spring so badly that the animals were only worth a fraction of what it had cost to winter them.

The extreme drought of 1919 following severe dry years finally brought the farmers together to organize for irrigation. Several of the men in the district had organized into a private irrigation committee and had surveyed and dug some ditches near the present Dam site on the Belly River. The province stepped into this and insisted they go through the proper channels. On August 30, 1919, the first official meeting of the United Irrigation District was held. These men were Edward Leavitt, George L. Stringam of Glenwood, and Seymour B. Smith of Mountain View. Mr Seymour B. Smith was elected chairman. Philip Baker was secretary/treasurer. Application was made to the Bank of Montreal for a loan to build the project. Engineers in Calgary, Spokane and Salt Lake City were asked to submit bids for building of the dam on the Belly River. Edward Leavitt and Seymour Smith canvassed the district to see how much water was wanted by the people. A firm in Calgary offered to draw up plans for the Dam and spillway for $500 and application was made to Waterton Lakes Park for a permit to get timber for the project.

There had been a similar organization affected in the east end of the district known as the Lone Rock Irrigation Co. On September 25, 1920, they merged with the United Irrigation District and sold their water rights to them for $100.

People of the district signed up for 15,055 acres. The present number of acres covered by water is 35,000.

In the fall of 1920, $30,000 was borrowed from Union Bank of Canada at 7% interest. The Bank of Montreal had refused a loan.

The U.I.D. Council floated bonds and persuaded the Provincial Government to guarantee them. In this way, the necessary money was raised. All in all, $100,000 was borrowed. The whole project cost $550,000. Also, the farmers all over the province were dissatisfied with the government, so they decided to organize and elect farmer candidates. In 1921, George L. Stringam of Glenwood was elected to represent Cochrane and Cardston districts for the United Farmers of Alberta Party. This position he held until the year 1935 when the Social Credit Party was swept into power with Nathan Eldon Tanner as member of Parliament for this district.
